The Got a Dollar.

A Kingston N. Y. man left by will a life interest to his widow in a little estate valued at $2,000, the property after her death to be divided among twelve heirs. There being a small mortgage on this property, foreclosure proceedings soon followed, and the costs of court lawyers' fees, etc., made the judgment foot up $1,999. During her life the widow will be entitled to the interest of the remaining dollar, and at her death two of the heirs will receive 20 cents each, five of them will be given 4 cents each, four of them will be entitled to 5 cents each, and one will receive the annual interest on 25 cents during life.

When Patti First Heard Tamagno. The story of Tamagno's engagement is an interesting one. He was singing at Rio Janeiro in the time Mr. Abbott took Patti there. She was commanding $30 a seat every night, and the great tenor was packing an opposition house at $12 a seat. Patti heard him sing at a matinee and immediately insisted that Mr. Abbott should engage him for the short season with her. Tamagno did not take kindly to the proposition, but an offer of $3,000 a performance caught him. Mr. Abbott guaranteed him $100,000 for fifty appearances, but the great manager could not work in more than forty-four appearances; but Tamagno took back $100,000 in American money, the same as though he had sung fifty times. Chicago Herald.

When the body was found one of the arms was missing, and on arrival of the train at Kobe, the missing limb was found attached to one of the engine wheels. The distance between the spot where the suicide took place and Kobe is about 200 miles.—Japan Gazette.

Hatching Chickens in Georgia. While a man in Americus, Ga., was boiling eggs to be used on the lunch counter he heard the chirp of a chicken. It now is as lively as a cricket and promises to grow to maturity.—Exchange.

TUESDAY EVE., MAY 6, 1890.

The Republican Love Feast.

It has long been the custom of the Republican State Central Committee of Illinois to call together, at some time early in the campaign year, a number of the active Republicans from different parts of the state, to consult as to the needs of the campaign, the temper of the party, and the prospects of the canvass. The meetings of this character usually call out a large attendance, and are always productive of much good. The committee have called this meeting to assemble in Chicago to-day, and the usual attendance is promised, if it does not really surpass any similar love feasts of recent years. A number of the members of Congress are in attendance, and the candidates can be depended upon to be present in force. But it is not only the officials and candidates who will be there—the largest proportion of those present will be found to consist of those who have never been before the public in the capacity of candidates, and who never will be. The majority will be those who are politicians because of their interest in the welfare of the great party which for a generation has filled so large a measure of the public attention, and without which the history of the government during its most important period could not be written. These are the men who participate in the management of party affairs, who formulate platforms, make issues and nominate candidates, and yet never figure as candidates themselves. These are the men who are the silent factors, who seldom make speeches, but who keep a finger upon the public pulse at all times, and who can be depended upon to detect every little indication going to show the shifting phases of public opinion.

The formal business of the committee will be the fixing of the time and place for holding the coming state convention, and the issuing of the official call under which it will be held. But then there will be a deal of "figuring" done in a quiet way, and without particular reference to the candidates to be nominated. The formation of the new state committee, with its prospective chairman, will be talked over, and the plan of the campaign will be mapped out, and all the preliminaries that can be attended to in advance will be cut out. The present chairman of the state committee, Gen. James S. Martin, not desiring a re-election, there will be a good deal of quiet canvassing as to his probable successor. It is pretty generally believed that his place will be filled by Walter S. Frazier of Aurora, the present member of the committee from the Fifth District. Mr. Frazier is a shrewd manager, and has long been prominent in political affairs in that portion of the state. He is about 55 years of age, and is at the head of a manufacturing establishment which does business in Chicago. He would make an active and efficient chairman.

Death of Ex-Governor Shuman. Hon. Andrew Shuman, formerly lieutenant-governor of Illinois, died of apoplexy in Chicago last night. He was for a long period the editor of the Chicago Evening Journal, and was one of the most widely known men in Illinois. He retired from active business a year or two ago and had been living quietly at Evanston. He was taken with an apoplectic attack on the street, and being unable to get further, he entered the first house and asked if a room and bed could be furnished him. He immediately retired, and though physicians were summoned, he died in a short time.

The joint agricultural and labor convention held at Springfield, the other day, passed resolutions in favor of the cause of silver and decided not to put a ticket in the field this year. This is discouraging for Democrats.

Mrs. MAXWELL Scott, owner of Abbottsford, the home of Sir Walter Scott, died $2,000 a year from the small admission fee which she charged visitors.

The average price paid for corn in the corn belt of Nebraska for the past five months was 14¢ per bushel.

Decatur at Chicago.

A recent issue of the Chicago Tribune gives an extended notice of the 18th entertainment of the season of the Chicago Conservatory, given entirely by the Del Norte department of the school of which Miss Eliza Morgan is the head. The entertainment was a triumph for that her and highly creditable to the institution. There was an informal reception on the stage for all the pupils, when the entertainment followed. The Tribune says:

The real Del Norte, part of the entertainment was the doing in pantomime of the killing of Caesar and the death of Cæsar. In the former Mr. Giles Warren was Caesar; Mr. E. L. Dvorak Brutus; Mr. Charles Harris, Cassius, and Mr. Charles Watrous, Antony. Mr. Dvorak showed fine repose, as did also Mr. Warren. Mr. Warren had striking facial expression as the languid Cæsar. In the second piece, Miss Goliath Andrew was a pleasing Virginia.

Damaging Fire. There was a damaging fire at Latham, on the P. D. & E. road, northwest of Decatur, at an early hour this morning, involving a loss of $6,000, partly insured. It broke out in Alex. Vanhorn's hardware store, and destroyed property owned by J. H. Graway, C. A. Holdridge, J. M. Allison, J. P. Simpson and L. A. Parish. The fire was put under control at 3 o'clock.

A SHOPLIFTER'S EXPERIENCES.

Three Incidents from the Life of a Skilled Female Thief.

From a curious source two or three incidents in the life of a professional thief may be set down here. They might be termed confessions of a shoplifter.

Stores in both Allegheny and Pittsburgh have suffered by the depredations of a remarkably skillful thief, who is woman.

She pride herself on her skill in shoplifting, and it is from her mouth that the following narrative originally came:

Once she visited a large store in Allegheny and asked to be shown some expensive cloaks. The goods were brought out and the stylish looking shoplifter took off the jacket she wore and tried on a cloak. She was not entirely satisfied with it, she said, and the salesman who was waiting upon her went off to another part of the store to get some more cloaks. This was the thief's chance. She walked away, leaving her jacket as a token of her regard. On the stairs the cloak department was the second floor---she met one of the owners of the store.

"Have you been waited upon?" he asked politely.

"Yes, thank you, and I am very well satisfied with this cloak," she replied, and saluted on. She escaped.

Another time she visited a shoe store in Pittsburgh. She had a small foot and was proud of it. It was no easy matter to please her, this affable young salesman found. The stock of fine ladies' shoes was ransacked to suit her taste. It was all in vain, for she departed without buying anything. Under her dress were two more shoes than a woman can wear, however.

When she looked at the stolen shoes after returning home she found that they were not mates. She was very much annoyed; in fact, the discovery took away her appetite for supper.

The next afternoon found her in the shoe store again. "The shoes you sold me the other day," she said to the salesman, who was not the one who had tried to suit her fastidious taste the day before, "are not mates, and will you kindly change them?"

The store was crowded---shoplifters seldom venture into an empty store---and the young man hurried off at once without further inquiry. In another minute he returned with a pair of shoes properly mated and gave them to the supposed customer. She did not stay to give thanks for the gift.

Once only did her confidence, some would call it impudence, desert her.

She visited a store one morning with the intention of appropriating some ostrich plumes. As usual, she was very particular about the quality of the feathers; she would look at one costing less than $6 or $7 apiece. But although the best feathers in the store were brought out for her inspection, she found none that was long enough, heavy enough or black enough to suit her. She apologized sweetly to the young woman behind the counter for the trouble she had given her, and promised to call again when the new consignment---which, of course, was coming next week---should arrive.

As she was leaving the store, she became aware that she had dropped something, and she looked behind her. A fine ostrich feather lay on the floor; it had slipped from under the cloak where the thief had concealed it, or to be more precise, it had not gone into the deep pocket in the cloak specially designed for its reception.

She hesitated for a second, loth to leave her prey, and yet afraid to stoop down and take it. Her assurance was not great enough to carry her through the second theft, and she left the store. The feather was not noticed till she had gone.---Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The First Colored Nurse.

Miss Minnie Hogan, a colored girl, has finished the two years' course in the Training School for Nurses of the University of Pennsylvania, with great success. Her treatment while at the training school was of the best. Miss Hogan was a pupil of the Institute for Colored Young, and received a letter of endorsement from Mrs. Coffin, the principal, at the time of her graduation upon her course of study. The colored people of this city take great pride and interest in this, the first of their race to graduate from this institution. The opening of the doors of the different departments of the University of Pennsylvania has served as a great incentive to the colored young men and women and each year more are availing themselves of the advantages offered, and they are succeeding creditably in their efforts at self-improvement.---New York Telegram.
